MEMORANDUM FOR COMMANDER, U.S. ARMY MATERIEL COMMAND,

SUBJECT: Credit for Non Army Managed Items (NAMI)

We have reviewed your request for clarification and recommendation on HQDA policy on credit for NAMI.

Current policy provides for serviceable NAMI credit, whether needed or not, at 3% without regard to class of supply or demand history. However, instructions provided for building the annualized credit table required that zero credit be allowed for NAMI that are non-weapon system oriented, as you've pointed out.

The price and credit table used in the development of cost factors in the Training Resource Model (TRM) was built to reflect 3% credit for weapon system related NAMI items and execution of NAMI credit should also reflect this. We concur with your recommendation that the 3% serviceable NAMI credit be limited to weapon system related items for which the Army has had a requirement for in the previous 36-month period. This is in consonance with a need-based credit policy, which makes good business sense and is fully supported by Army leadership. Additionally, credit should be allowed only on those items in the current Army Master Data File.

We apologize for the lateness of our response. My point of contact for this action is Willy O. Greffenreid, (703) 695-7082 or via email at greffwo@hqda.army.mil.
